MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 4.

A YACHT WITH A NEW MOTER.-The East Greenwich (R. 1) correspondence of the Prov idence Journal contains the following: "For fortnight past a small yacht, not more than 20 feet in length has been gliding over the waters of our bay which has excited no little amount of curiosity, while it is regarded by many as a wonder. It makes at least 12 miles an hour, but no smoke pipe or escaping steam indicates the nature of the power that propels it. A lighted match applied will set it in complete motion in one miou'e, and the expenses of this novel moter do not exceed six cents an bour, kerosense being the only combustible used. The machine bears a close resemblance to the steam engine, having for its main features a cylinder, a piston, crank, and fly wheel. There is also an air pump for compressing air, and a chamber for holding safely under considerable pressure. "The sir is admitted to the working cylinder by means of suitable valves, and it is made to pass in its way to the cylinder through fibrous material, moistened with petroleum, so that the oil is vaporized and mixed with the sir, thus forming a combustible compound a small jet which is kept constantly ignited in the cylinder. The petroleum is fed to the fibrous material, which is closely packed in a small recess, a few drops at each revolution of the engine, by means of a small injecting pump work by the engine.

'After the air chamber has been once charged, the presure is constantly maintained, and the opening of a valve and the application of a lighted match is all that is necessary to start the engine, which can be done in a few seconds. The parts that might become heated are kept cool by a water circulation, so there is no poscool by a water circulation, so there is no possible chance of an explosion. The refuse of combustion is conducted down through the bottom of the vessel into the water, thus avoiding the necessity of a smoke stack. It also avoids the necessity of a smoke stack. It also avoids the heat which is generated by a huge bolier, and can be easily run by an ordinary person. The inventer of this motor, who has devoted may years to developing and perfecting it, is Mr. George B. Brayton, a Greenwich bred boy, descended on the Waterman side from the good old Bailey stock, so well known in the westerly part of the town."
